

Questions about the future

There are different ways to express the future. You can express future with will (will + verb) or future with going to (be + going to + verb). Both will and going to refer to a specific time in the future. Going to expresses that something is a plan. It doesn't matter whether the plan is realistic or not.

Where will you stay?

Where are you going to stay?

You can also use the present continuous (be + verb + -ing) for future actions. It indicates that something will or will not happen in the near future.

Where are you staying?

I'm staying at my cousin's place.

We are visiting the caves.

Task 1: Complete the sentences with the words from the box.

will visiting traveling going stay

1. He is _____ his parents this weekend.
2. I'm _____ to buy the tickets tomorrow.
3. I think I will _____ in a hotel.
4. When are you _____ to the caves?
5. _____ you buy any souvenirs?

Task 2: Put the verbs in parentheses in the correct future form.

1. I can't talk now. I _____ (call) you later.
2. I can't go to the movies this afternoon, because I _____ (see) the doctor at 3:00.
3. The sky is dark and full of clouds. It _____ (rain).
4. They are going to the beach because they _____ (sunbathe).
5. Peter _____ (leave) for Brazil tomorrow at 8:00.
6. A: I'm very cold.
B: I _____ (lend) you my jacket.